CANADIAN BUSINESS ASKS GOVERNMENT TO CEASE INTERFERENCE

Dominion Chamber of Commerce Appeals for Minimum Restrictions, Decrease in Taxation By Economy and Solution of Railway Problem—Seventeen Suggestions Are Made

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Sept. 30 (P)—Canadian business, in so far as it is represented by the Dominion Chamber of Commerce, appealed today for "freedom" from unnecessary Government interference and other "restrictions" to permit it to develop the nation's commerce from coast to coast.

In a seventeen-point manifesto, representatives of 20,000 business men called on governments to stop competing with private business except where necessary, to decrease taxation by economy, to ease "imposition of bans on commercial relations," cut down the number of legislators in all categories and cut out the small and often unnecessary restrictions on the conduct of business.

RAILWAY PROBLEM

Before adoption of its "freedom" plan, the 200 delegates adopted also a resolution recommending re-convening of the Senate committee on railways, which sat at the last session of Parliament. A solution of the railway problem should be found "with all possible speed," the resolution said.

A clause dealing with the railway situation was embodied, too, in the "freedom" declaration. In it the chamber members asked "freedom" through an earnest effort by the Dominion Government to lighten the burden of the railway system.

In other directions the chamber, recognizing responsibilities of business, demanded "freedom" through:

1. Few restrictions as possible upon individual effort.
2. "The most favorable condition possible" for agriculture.
3. "The lessening of the exactions resulting from continued Government deficits."
4. Elimination of "duplication of taxes imposed by Dominion, provincial and municipal governments."
5. Check on "the progressive imposition of bans on commercial relations."

PREMIER TAKES PART IN WORK

'Peace' and 'Liberty' Lowered Into Position in Canadian War Memorial

OTTAWA, Sept. 30 (P)—With Prime Minister Mackenzie King handling the details, the heroic figures, symbolizing "Peace" and "Liberty," were lowered into position today at the top of the seventy-foot arch comprising the super-structure of the National War Memorial here.

"Peace and Liberty are now in place," the Prime Minister said as he descended from the operations platform of the huge granite arch which forms the centre of the memorial group.

The event, coinciding with signing of the four-power agreement to avert a world war, was attended by Cabinet ministers, representatives of foreign countries and the clergy.

FORMAL DEDICATION

The twenty-five bronze figures will be in place in about four weeks and formal dedication may take place on Armistice Day.

More than ten years ago the March family of sculptors of Farmington, England, won an international competition for design of a Canadian national war memorial to be placed in Ottawa.

Three of the March brothers are now in Ottawa supervising assembly of the monument, which stands in a prominent position formerly occupied by the Postoffice, close by the Parliament Buildings.

Heroic bronze figures representing all branches of the Canadian forces overseas during the war of 1914-18 will be grouped about and on the granite arch.

EXPRESSES LOYALTY

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 30 (P)—Loyalty to Great Britain was expressed in a resolution passed today by the Jamaica Legislature in a special session. Hope was also expressed efforts being made by His Majesty's ministers would preserve peace in Central Europe.

Vanguard Advances to Take Possession One Hour After Midnight

COMMISSION FOR EVACUATION MEETS

BERLIN, Oct. 1 (P)—The first contingent of German troops crossed the Czechoslovak frontier near Aigen, Upper Austria, early today, starting Adolf Hitler's occupation of territory granted him by the four-power Munich accord.

The green-clad German infantrymen marched over the border shortly after 1 a.m. (P.S.T.). Friday, little more than an hour after the midnight deadline Hitler had set for his conquest.

An infantry battalion, plus several motorized divisions, took possession of the frontier town of Aigen, immediately behind the Czechoslovak frontier in southwestern Czechoslovakia.

VANGUARD RECONNOITRES

It was explained this movement was regarded as merely a vanguard reconnoitering the terrain and preparing for the main army of occupation to march in later today, taking over the rest of Sudeten districts ceded to Hitler by the Munich pact.

SIGN FOR PEACE ON WATERFRONT

New Contract Between Employers and Longshoremen's Union Goes Into Effect

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30 (P)—Pacifying a former peace on the Pacific Coast waterfronts for the year to come, a new contract between employers and the 6,100 longshoremen union took effect at midnight today.

The contract set up a binding arbitration machinery for settlement of any disputes that may arise and was hailed by both sides as satisfactory and workable when it was formally signed today. There are no changes in wages, hours of working conditions.

Aaron F. Roth, who quit his post as controller of Stanford University last year to become president of the Waterfront Employers' Association, declared the contract's execution "would sound the death knell of quick strikes on this coast."

The Hungarian Government has agreed to the Czechoslovakian demand for a map of the territory to be transferred to Hungary.

The Magyar version of Czechoslovakia are about the Hungarian Government in the south. The program is similar to that of the German version, which would transfer to Hungary of all Czechoslovak territory in which a "pure" Hungarian population lives.

A map was said to have been prepared at the Foreign Office to be sent to Prague and along with it, the Czechoslovakian demand for a map of the territory to be transferred to Hungary.

Saanich Encourages Its Young Farmers

Among the most interesting of the classes at the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society's annual Fall Fair for the past several years are those for the Boys' and Girls' Registered Jersey Heifer Club and the Boys' and Girls' Registered Jersey Calf Club. The former, this year, attracted nine entries; the latter, ten. Douglas Lawson, Sidney, was awarded the coveted Mrs. A. J. B. Dewdney silver challenge cup and miniature for the best heifer exhibited by boy or girl. These classes are doing a great deal to encourage the young people of the district to take an active practical interest in stockbreeding, to this end lectures being given throughout the Winter on feeding, breeding, and other points.

ing an account at the credit house is allowed to withdraw in cash a sum equal to the replacement value of the goods which he sold. If he wishes to withdraw the balance in cash, he may do so, provided he pays a 2 per cent penalty. Any cash withdrawals against cash deposits by merchants may be made without penalty.

EXPECTED STIMULATION
Glen MacLachlan, chairman of the Social Credit Board, declared operation of the system would lead to increased purchasing power for consumers and stimulate manufacture and marketing of Alberta-made goods. Revenue to farmers from sale of grain, livestock, etc., when placed in the credit house would bring the 3 per cent bonus in the purchase of Alberta-made goods, he pointed out.

Mr. MacLachlan declared the transfer vouchers could not be termed scrip or currency. They were receipts to merchants for goods purchased, which would bring the merchant a credit at the credit house which had originally issued them on the deposit of cash, he declared. He saw no clash in the system with any Federal currency laws.

Opening of other credit houses—in effect, branches of the Provincial Treasury Department—is expected to be undertaken shortly, said Mr. MacLachlan. Credit houses in Edmonton and Calgary are contemplated shortly, and both probably will be opened on the same day.

Enter the pedestrian with a finger-flip that sent the cigarette into the gasoline streak. Flames erupted, six parked automobiles were damaged, and Mrs. Dorothy Lattier, twenty-six, was burned.

How It Started
By CLARA NEWTON

"CONSISTENCY IS THE HOBGOBLIN OF LITTLE MINDS"

Consistency, the common saying, is the hobgoblin of little minds.

This, however, is neither the letter nor the spirit of the original version.

The words are a misquotation of a sentence in Self-Reliance, an essay by Ralph Waldo Emerson, published with others in one volume, in 1841.

As set down by the Concord philosopher, the line reads:

"A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adored by little statesmen and philosophers and divines."

Cigarette Starts Train of Damage

EASTERN FUNDS IN MINE FIELD

Hon. W. J. Asselstine Reports Settlement Near in West Coast Dispute

"Negotiations are under way in connection with the dispute over the Zeballos Gold Peak property, and all parties concerned are anxious for a settlement. Negotiations are continuing at Vancouver, and I am very hopeful of a settlement. It is mainly a matter of working out details," Hon. W. J. Asselstine reported on his return to the city yesterday, after mediation in the affair.

The Provincial Minister of Mines said that Eastern capital was available for development in the Zeballos field on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, and that the department was anxious to clear the way for that development to go ahead.

The Government would do what could be done by trails and otherwise to open up the field, Mr. Asselstine said, in conclusion.

Final Result Is Expected to Show Not More Than 15,000 Names Registered in City

When the civic voters' list closed at the City Hall at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 951 new registrations were on file. The list was open from August 1 to the 31st of September. Last year registrations were accepted from September 1 to October 31, and 1,099 new names added. In the December elections in 1937, those entitled to vote totaled 11,828. M. Frank Hunter, city clerk, estimated this year's voters' list passed by the court of revision would contain not more than 12,000 names.

INSURANCE MEN MEET AT HOTEL

Coast Delegates of Metropolitan Life Hold Third Annual Convention

Led by their San Francisco vice-president, Henry E. North, 125 managers, assistant managers and leading agents of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company from Oregon, Montana and Washington gathered at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon for their third annual sales congress in Victoria. The presence of some of the business men's wives brought the total strength of the party to nearly one hundred and sixty.

Following a preliminary convention at the hotel yesterday afternoon during which business policies for the coming year were discussed by the vice-presidents and the accompanying Pacific Coast superintendent of agencies and his assistant, J. A. Smithies and J. O. Klein, the delegates were entertained at a supper and dance in the hotel dining-rooms.

Following a brief business session this morning for the managers and district office managers the party will board the afternoon boat for Seattle. British Columbia branches of the company were not represented at the meeting. W. W. Macdonald, head of the branch in Victoria, being away on a ten day holiday trip to Skagway, Alaska.

KILLED BY BULLET SHOT THROUGH WALL

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 30 (AP)—Ballard Rucker, Jr., nine, was fatally wounded today, Patrolman Guy Wainwright said, by a pistol bullet fired by his stepfather, George Taylor, during the course of a nightmare. The bullet passed through the wall separating the rooms in which they were sleeping.

Taylor, told officers he dreamed he heard a noise in the house and before regaining consciousness, fired the pistol, which he keeps at his bedside.

TOO MUCH LIKE GENEVA

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 30 (AP)—Germans do not use the word "conference" in discussing the meeting of Western Europe's four most important government chiefs here. "That word smacks too much of Geneva and its gabbing," they said, and skirt it by alluding instead to "talks" or "conversations."

Explains Why Bren Gun Bidding Could Not Be Competitive

General Lefleche Tells Inquiry Inglis Company Chosen Because War Office Would Consider No Other—Accepts Responsibility for Deal

OTTAWA, Sept. 30 (AP)—The impossibility of obtaining competitive bids from a number of manufacturers on the manufacture of Bren guns caused concern in the inter-departmental committee on the control of profits on Government armament contracts, C. Fraser Elliott, commissioner of income tax, today told Mr. Justice H. H. Davis, royal commissioner investigating the Bren gun contract.

Mr. Elliott, member of the committee of senior Government officials to which all armament contracts must be referred, was examined by L. A. Forsyth, of Montreal, associate Government counsel.

The contract is one under which the John Inglis Company, of Toronto, is to make 7,000 Bren light machine guns for the Dominion Government on a cost plus 10 per cent basis. The investigation results from criticism of the contract in a magazine article by Lieut.-Col. George Drew, of Toronto. The company also holds a contract from the British War Office for 5,000 guns.

Mr. Elliott said that at the first meeting of the committee in connection with the contract, January 5, 1938, there seemed to be two aspects for the committee to consider—competitive bids and an examination of the proposed contract with a view to protecting the public interest.

ACCEPTS RESPONSIBILITY
Major-General L. R. Lafleche, deputy minister of national defence and chairman of the committee, said his department would take responsibility for selection of the Inglis Company without competitive bids from others.

Although the committee was reluctant to abandon the possibility of competitive bidding, there was no other course open and it proceeded to examine the terms of the proposed contract.

General Lafleche assured the committee the Defence Department had followed British practice in selecting the Inglis Company, and produced information to the effect the War Office wanted the Inglis Company and none other.

By giving the contract to the Toronto company, the capital cost of setting up a plant could be spread over two contracts, resulting in a Scanty, highly coloured urine, headache, backache and constipation are among the early symptoms of kidney disease. The appetite is feeble, the tongue is furred and in time there is pallor and loss of weight.

THE LARGER ISSUES

Premier Chamberlain and Herr Hitler have signed an undertaking designed to perpetuate the friendship of Great Britain and Germany, and to devise ways and means whereby the two countries can act in unison to promote the peace of Europe. That is one of the accomplishments of the British Prime Minister as a result of his visit to Munich to the four-Power conference. It is an undertaking greater in its future possibilities than the settlement of the Sudeten issue, for permanent friendship between these two Powers is an asset of inestimable value for the cause of peace. Moreover, there are to be efforts to reach a complete agreement between Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy for joint diplomatic action in the case of any new quarrel arising in Europe. That would indicate a treaty fraught with greater significance than any negotiated within living memory.

The settlement of the Sudeten problem is only a prelude to a larger settlement that will be calculated to quote Mr. Chamberlain, "to bring peace in our time." That will be the hope of all. Czechoslovakia has accepted the terms of the Munich protocol, though that State remains distrustful of Germany's intentions, because, though no force was used, it was the threat of force that brought about the settlement, and at Czechoslovakia's expense. This fact does not, in any sense, detract from the triumph won by Mr. Chamberlain. He had in view always the larger issues at stake; he realized that a certain sacrifice must be made if guarantees were to be won to insure the peace of the future. So far as the word of the leaders of the four great Powers may be trusted, those guarantees have been achieved. The world breathes a sigh of relief because of the Munich protocol, and the British Empire has a particular satisfaction in the written guarantee of Anglo-German friendship which Mr. Chamberlain brought home to London.

Whatever criticism may develop over the terms of the Sudeten settlement must be weighed in the balance with larger issues. There has been such an accomplishment won in hope for the years to come that relief from human anxiety is the inestimable boon conferred, as it relates to the danger of another world war. That is a burden taken from the soul of mankind, which will enable the people of many countries to redouble their efforts on the peaceful path of human progress. It is conceivable that the guarantees now secured, and in prospect, against the possibility of another outbreak of any war of gigantic proportions will give a greater fillip to trade than it has experienced for decades. It will be a factor in easing the problem of unemployment. It may, and should, lead to mutual arrangements between the Powers for a reduction in their armaments, and, at least, lead to the putting of a period to the vast warlike preparations that have been in progress within recent years. These and other repercussions would be the logical outcome of the Munich conference, and their effect on the world will mark a new era in the march of civilization.

The character of the reception given to Mr. Chamberlain on his return to London illustrates how the heart of the British people is inspired with the ideal of peace. No nation has hailed the settlement with louder acclaim, and there is in this every reason for self-congratulation, for Mr. Chamberlain, throughout the negotiations, has been the spokesman for peace, and in being so has interpreted the British viewpoint. His triumph is the climax of a great political career. It was made possible by the attitude of the British people as a whole, whether they are Conservatives, Liberals or Laborites in their politics. They all rallied in support of the course he pursued at Berchtesgaden, at Godesberg and at the crowning episode of Munich. Yesterday in London they gave him a reception which, in point of enthusiasm, has never been accorded to any Prime Minister. In doing so the British people showed conclusively that peace is their watchword, not peace at any price, for they were just as determined, as their preparations foreshadowed, that it must be peace with honor.

THE BUILDER

During these very strenuous days it is something of a relief to turn, even for a few moments, from the fateful possibilities of impending or threatening international conflict and occupy our minds with less disturbing matters than political boundaries, oppressed minorities, ultimatums and mobilization of troops. In the August number of The Atlantic Monthly, Professor Ramsay Traquair, of McGill University, discusses pleasantly upon the peaceful subject of architecture. The art of building is constructive in more senses than one and it forms a more attractive subject of contemplation than the trade of destroying life and property. Professor Traquair begins by pointing out in a conversational way that while we may regard science as being in an important sense cosmopolitan, we cannot look at art in the same light. The justly celebrated bacteria of the physician, or the atoms of the physicist, or the symbols of the mathematician may behave, or be made to behave in pretty much the same way in all the continents, but there is a certain localism or provincialism, if you like, inseparable from art in all its branches and this, in Professor Traquair's view is especially true of architecture.

Architects have much to say about capitals, pediments, columns, entablatures, arches, tracery windows, and the like, but these things, interesting as they undoubtedly are, are not architecture. Professor Traquair appears to think that these things have little or nothing more to do with real architecture than proficiency in the goose-step has to do with military valor. He does not put it in these words, but such appears to be his meaning. He would probably subscribe to the proposition that these architectural flourishes do for architecture what a happy smile, an apt alliteration, or a lucky rhyme may do for poetry. If we guess Professor Traquair's meaning aright such flourishes are like a feather in a girl's cap, a formal eulogy, a timely compliment, or a graceful caper in dancing. They are but popular or ornamental trimmings dependent upon the taste and fancy of the builder. The true principles of architecture on the other hand are concerned not with these more or less attractive decorative effects, but with the practical use of sound materials to meet and satisfy local needs and aspirations.

The chief determining factors in architecture, then, are climate and geography. These dictate and determine the materials and plan of construction of the Eskimo igloo, just as surely as they determine the character of a Greek temple, a California bungalow, or a "lone shieling on the misty island." A Georgian brick house would be too hot and airless in Central India and an Indian house of colonnades and courts would be impossible to heat in a northern winter. Architecture grows out of climate. After you have erected your house in accordance with climatic needs you may begin to think of ornamentation. If you live in the North you will of course remember that thick-walled houses once heated remain warm for a long time, that thin-walled ones go cold very quickly, that a thick flat roof keeps out heat in tropical countries and provides a convenient and safe promenade or open air bedroom, that it is a good snow roof, providing a blanket of snow in winter, but it is a bad rain roof.

When we say that the house in the next street is in the "Gothic" style we do not mean that it has strong walls and that its floors are spread with rushes and that it has neither bathroom nor drainage. We only mean that it is ingeniously trimmed with little bits copied from fourteenth century manors and parish churches. Horseshoe arches, Alhambra capitals, even a little fountain in a central hall may form romantic features for not fit a Canadian house. Fancy dress is sometimes ill-fitting, and such ornamental trimmings are apt to make the place "look like a Turkish bath establishment."

The world said Bassoian is still deceived with ornament. . . the seeming truth which cunning times put on to entrap the wisest.

SPIRIT OF ILL WILL

It is a pity, a great pity, that Major Douglas, the protagonist of Social Credit, should have mixed up his advocacy of this economic theory with an attack on the Jews. The attack was vicious and quite unfair, and will do his cause harm. He has, indeed, in his attitude allied himself with Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini. Even the language employed savors of that used by these dictators, for he said: "The outstanding characteristic of the Jewish race is parasitism. It thrives upon other races and succeeds, no doubt, largely by its financial technique, in choking the original culture to which it attaches itself." He insists that the Jews "are a menace to any organization, whether national or otherwise, in which they are allowed to acquire a vested interest."

This is an onslaught on an entire race, and wholly out of line with the protestations of some Social Creditors who claim that what they are attempting to bring about is in the spirit of good will and high ethical purpose. In fact, there has been the effort to introduce the element of Christianity itself into the tenets of the Social Credit creed. Major Douglas, by his latest outburst, seems to have disposed of the idea, for Christianity bespeaks quite a different attitude than that which Major Douglas displays towards his fellow men.

The wicked are wicked, no doubt, and they go astray and they fall, and they come by their deserts; but who can tell the mischief which the very virtuous do?—Thackeray.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

Cynics will say, of course, that what we have been discussing was but a piece of Europe; but I do not believe that.

Write it in your history books that four of the world's most powerful nations, bristling with arms and emotionally aroused to fighting, stood not far from each other, and yet they did not fight—they called a meeting instead.

In Germany, 1,000,000 men were under arms, and more were being called to the colors hourly. In France, 2,000,000 men stood at their defence posts, Italy had summoned the resources of a totalitarian state to arms. In Britain, the air force and the navy were standing-to and reservists had been called-up to call upon with unnamed millions in Russia beyond that again.

If the last war meant anything, there was a ten years' war in all that. The headline says you have been "repealed" and that the trouble is over "for the present." I dare to hope that you have been not only repealed, but acquitted. What the world shies away from, once it will look at twice next time, before acting.

To hear some people say it, you would think they wanted a ten years' war! Then there were others who were not so sure. They were the individual told me he was concerned about having postponed his holidays until October. One is constrained to believe that a large number of people have never seen war, and cannot envision the consequences. May they never be disillusioned!

Like it or not, Chamberlain, Hitler, Daladier and Mussolini deserve well at your hands. You would have to go back to the days of the Boer war to find leaders who risked their lives in the heart of the opposing camp in just that fashion. I do not recall any act of personal courage that ranks with that of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, who took, and held, the initiative. It was magnificent. I wish, whether you agree with the terms or not.

Significantly, too, the people of Germany, Italy, France and Britain cheered a third time. They insisted that there was a third try. One could be cynical and point to files in the world's almanacs; but is there not some ground to believe that in the last ten days the brotherhood of man has grown a little closer together?

There may have been those on the outside who pledged their neutrality before it was sought, and agreed to sell munitions "on a cash-and-carry basis," but they, one must believe, were not representative either of their own country nor of the world at large. The whole world was involved, and knew it. When a world burns, it takes fire all over.

Around the British Commonwealth of Nations when days were at their darkest, India, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand told the Mother Country, "You can count on us." And Canada said—but perhaps we should not go into that. The battle honors of Canadian regiments were, perhaps, a surer guide.

So, today you are "repealed," or, as I believe, acquitted, and may go about your business more securely than at any period in the last twenty years. Children may play in the open fields, unwatched. Old folks may sun themselves on the front steps. Birds may make free of the air and the green foliage. People may resume their natural, working lives.

The world has consented, for the moment, not to destroy itself. On the whole, it seems a reasonable decision. Is it not queer that such a decision, vital to your life and fortunes, should have been reached by four men, scarcely two of whom had ever met before? Yet, there at Munich, they stood for nations; nay, for commonwealths of nations, if not actually for the entire world.

Scarf if you will, but the airplane and the radio played their part in the settlement. Chancelleries had the will of many people thrust in front of them, hourly. The world has grown so small that its most powerful spokesmen left their homes and met in a single room inside of a few very hours. All this you know, but have you really realized yet what it means? It implies the greatest opportunity that man has ever known, a chance to master the machinery of understanding.

This, perhaps, is the real Armistice, that period of the cessation of hostilities in which man will extend again the roots of his discontent, the cause of infection, and decide upon a calmer, surer way—the path of negotiation, settlement.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily Colonist of October 1, 1888)

Society's Chosen Officers—The Y.P.L.A. of the First Presbyterian Church met in their rooms last night, when the following were elected officers for the ensuing term: President, D. E. Kerr; first vice-president, Miss Kate Teague; second vice-president, Mr. Gunnison; secretary, Mr. Cochrane; treasurer, Miss C. Robertson; and clergymen, Mr. Irresponsible, J. Hattie; assistant editor, Miss M. Clunas. The society, which meets every Monday evening will no doubt, under the new regime, maintain the favorable reputation it has gained in the past.

Presentation Is Made—On Monday evening last, Bro. Arthur Holmes, retiring treasurer of Court Vancouver Lodge No. 3755, A.O.F., who has held the office since 1911, and who has just resigned for the past eight years, was presented by the members of the lodge with a handsome gold pen and pencil case, and a gold emblematic badge, suitably inscribed, in recognition of his long and faithful service in connection with the lodge and the order. The presentation was made by Bro. W. G. Cameron, P.D.C., on behalf of the lodge and was acknowledged in suitable terms by the recipient, who left yesterday on an extended visit to his early home in Merry England. and peace. For twenty years we have not known peace; but merely the surcease from exhaustion after war. Last week even war would have been welcomed in place of uncertainty. Today there is hope of peace.

It is, perhaps, too much to say that will seize on that hope, that wish towards peace, and make it a reality all at once. It is too sanguine to believe that animosities will die overnight; that flaming passions will be curbed instantly. On the other hand, man has seen some things of the vision; he has learned something from his fear; and will not rest content until he has tried to reach that distant goal.

Mark the war monuments of the world. Examine the wrecked homes and strangled trees. Walk down the long, long line of sombre crosses above those who gave their lives in action, so that you might live in peace; and tell me, if you dare, they died in vain. If, for one, will not believe it. Peace on earth, good will toward men, that is the age-old vision—possess it yet man must and will.

World Neighbors

The recent scare has had the effect of manifesting to the world the proximity, for practical purposes, of the scattered parts of the universe. Every part of the world has been kept within speaking distance of the remainder of the earth throughout the progress of the preparations being made on the one hand for the launching of war, and on the other for the meeting of these preparations by other counsels by other countries. The chancelleries of the earth are now in touch with one another at all times and the remaining parts of the world are aware of what is taking place from hour to hour. The facilities for the dissemination of information are such that the making of war seems to be a difficult thing to carry into execution without due explanations affecting the issues that are involved.—O.H.N.

Take It Either Way

A financial writer claims that increased sales of golf balls points to better business conditions. It might also mean that the golf prowess of many persons is deteriorating. An Eastern newspaper tells of an Ontario farmer who has to share his pig of chewing tobacco with the family horse. Perhaps no harm will be done if he manages to keep the nag away from cigarettes. . . . We read that Rabbit Flat, Ore., has changed its name to Woe-woe. There is not much to choose between the two names. Our tobaccoist friend thinks some persons who turn up their noses at a five-cent cigar are of the opinion that a nickel will buy a good sermon on Sunday. . . . Our lifetime partner claims a cowboy walks about seven or eight miles per day while doing the housework. If he lived in a country house with a party line telephone, she might walk as much as fifteen miles per day. . . . Aubrey is glad that he is a Canadian living in a peaceful country. He told us in Europe that a man is free to speak his mind, and the government is free to shoot him for doing so.—G.B.

"Wild West"

"The lady must remember that she is going out to the wild and woolly West, where there are no St. Johns or Beaumonts. Victoria itself is a delightful place, home of retired Indian colonels, but much from a Catholic point of view. There is a diocese of Victoria, which has about eight priests. The Bishop, Cody, is delightful, thirty-eight, and only just appointed."

The foregoing, handed to us recently, is an excerpt from a letter written by a Toronto source of information in response to a query on behalf of a Catholic family contemplating taking up residence in Victoria. Not being a Catholic we cannot vouch for the city's attractions "from a Catholic point of view," but we are interested in this part of the picture as well as the other parts about the "retired Indian colonels" and the "wild and woolly West." It is just about as glib a way of dismissing Victoria as to say, as has been said during some of its really "wild" seasons, that it is a city of "widows and gardens." A little publicity sent back to Toronto might not be amiss.—J.E.M.B.

Glancing Over Sport

Nothing but a miracle will stop the rampaging Chicago Cubs from winning the National League pennant after sweeping that ever important three-game series from the Pittsburgh Pirates—if the Cubs lose one game of their remaining three and the Pirates take four straight from the Cincy Reds the Pittsburgh boys will win the flag by a lone percentage point. That would be the closest finish since the Cubs beat out the Giants in an extra game back in 1912, the year Fred Merkle committed the greatest "bone" in baseball history. . . . The local soccer situation is now more topsy-turvy than the basketball. The cagers have declared "peace" in a fashion, but the footballers still don't know where it's all going to end, according to reports. . . . Out in centre field at the Willow track during the recent race meet was a conspicuous person whom most of the bettors knew little about. It was Bill Brand, Vancouver, who looked after the odds board. Bill was one of the best ball players developed in the Northwest. He played pro for Bob Brown, then went to the Coast League, and ended up by being sold to the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League. He was a pitcher, and a good one at that.—J.D.

DUCK-SHOOTING SEASON

Sir,—Upon reading Mr. O. O. Beebe's letter of September 22 regarding the duck season and the wanton slaughter carried on each year at Cowichan Lake, I feel that I must add my conclusions on the subject.

Mr. Beebe states that 500 ducks would be a low estimate of the number shot and wasted each season, being unfit for consumption, due to eating decomposed salmon. But such an estimate can be made only after many years' study, and I feel sure that his figure is far in excess. The true number, it is true, that most ducks in this area become fishy after the end of October, and it is also true that at this time, some, shot merely for sport, are wasted by not being retrieved. But this is not a general practice.

With regard to a solution, I would like to see a shorter and earlier season for ducks in this locality, say October 15 to November 30. But, I must add my conclusions on the subject.

CIVIC TRANSPORTATION

Sir,—The citizens of Victoria are not very proud of the dilapidated frame that render such limited service and leave the rest to the buses that penetrate to the outlying districts. Bus routes could be made much more convenient and accessible to the patrons of our transportation facilities than the stubby rail lines that now exist. The bus routes could all traverse a downtown loop, where transfers would be good on any other route.

In James' Bay district, for example, a bus route could circle the entire district in both directions and give better service to the docks and residential district, instead of two lines that are now too widely separated and are not convenient to most residents.

Buses will also be just as important to the merchants and business in general as any train service. THORVALD SORENSON,

Market Leaders Sweep Upwards On Wall Street

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Stock market leaders swept upward 1 to 5 points today and a few much more as Europe's war scare evaporated with the signing of the "big four" peace pact at Munich.

Overnight buying orders in blocks as large as 10,000 shares for some favorites such as U.S. Steel and General Motors swamped the stock exchange at the start, and during the first half-hour the ticker tape was behind. In the first hour the turnover amounted to 700,000 shares. Volume dwindled later as profit selling appeared and closing prices, in the majority of cases were below the best of the day.

It was one of the most exciting openings in months. Efforts to coordinate the flood of purchasing orders from all parts of the country and abroad brought a delay of twenty minutes before a deal in "big steel" could be negotiated. The two principal motors were also late in getting a start.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was up 13 points at 482 on top of yesterday's advance of 1-5. Transfers of 1,507,860 shares, compared with 1,228,710 the day before and were the best since September 14.

Bonds joined stocks and banded in central commodities in a broad advance today on overnight news of settlement of the European war crisis.

All types of loans—rails, industrial, utilities, foreign dollar issues and U.S. Governments—joined wholeheartedly in the upward movement.

MET REFUGEES FROM GERMANY

Bishop Sexton Heard Harrowing Stories From Jewish Exiles

Heavy-trending incidents, reflecting the bitter and unjust persecution of a race which all down the ages had been the butt of oppressors, are brought back by Rt. Rev. H. E. Sexton, Bishop of Columbia, who had for fellow-passengers when he traveled back from Quebec this week a large party of Jewish refugees on their way from Germany to New Zealand and Australia.

"Their departure from Germany was arranged by the churches in England, in co-operation with the Society of Friends, and it is understood employment will be found for them on arrival in Australia," said the Bishop, in explaining to The Colonist how these exiles were able to travel so far after their flight from Germany.

Although all had some Jewish blood in their veins, a large number of these migrants were not Jews in the ordinary sense of the word. A goodly number were Christians, and the Bishop, who, as is well known, has many friends in Australia, helped many of them with letters of introduction to leading citizens in the Commonwealth.

SUPERIOR TYPES
Talking to them he found that the majority spoke English quite fluently and grammatically, many impressing him as being of a well-educated and superior type. Several were going on the land. A few of the women were going into domestic service, although one would hardly suspect from their delicate appearance that they would be fitted for such work.

"All exhibited an extraordinary sense of relief in having been able to get away from Germany," commented Bishop Sexton.

Harrowing stories were told by these refugees of the deplorable conditions of the concentration camps to which Jews were being sent in Germany. Bishop Sexton was told how Jewish prisoners would frequently, without any warning, suddenly disappear from the camps, their ashes being subsequently returned to their relatives without any word of explanation. Cremation, apparently always followed when citizens were "put out of the way," consequently their relatives had no knowledge as to the cause of death.

VALUABLE SETTLERS
"Being of a superior type these refugees bound for Australasia should become valuable settlers," thought the Bishop. As was to be expected none of them had any use for Hitler. They were keenly looking forward to a life of freedom under the British flag. Many, it was noticed, came from Hamburg.

Bishop Sexton has been attending the annual meetings of the Anglican Bishops of Canada, held in Quebec from September 16 to September 23. Matters of vital interest to the church the world over, but particularly to the church in Canada, were discussed during the week, but of this he would have something to say at a later date.

Renovations to Be Carried Out

Tentative plans for renovating several rooms in the K. of G. Hall were discussed at a recent meeting of the K. of G. Council, 1256, Knights of Columbus, and the matter was referred to the executive with power to have the work done immediately. An ambitious programme of activities, including socials, debates and addresses, was decided upon for the coming season.

A debate, arranged by Peter G. Hartnell, chairman of the debating committee, was held on the subject of retention of the street railway system. Those taking part were E. Leonard, Arthur Leonard, W. Stewart, W. Mulcahy, Arthur Cowden, Sr., and Mr. Hartnell. The negative, led by Mr. Leonard and supporting the plea of buses, was successful.

The next meeting of the council will take place on October 11 when Leo M. Sweeney, Vancouver, will speak on his recent travels in Australia and New Zealand.

Chinese Admit Success of Japanese Attack on Split Hill

HANKOW, Sept. 30 (AP)—Chinese authorities tonight admitted that invading Japanese forces, after three weeks of pounding at Chinese defenses, finally had reduced the strong Split Hill fortifications in the Yangtze River Valley, 100 miles below Hankow.

The Japanese had attacked with land artillery and naval guns and aerial bombs, and finally broke through after paying a price which Chinese officials estimated at 10,000 casualties and severe damage to total loss of half a dozen warships. Chinese headquarters tonight announced the Split Hill defenders had withdrawn to positions previously prepared to the rear.

Immediate attacks on the Split Hill position was indicated by the stubbornness of the Chinese resistance, but it was known the Japanese would have many obstacles still blocking the river approach to Hankow, including mine fields, barbed wire, and strong shore fortifications.

SEES PEACE FOR WHOLE OF EUROPE

never to go to war with one another again.

Then Mr. Chamberlain stepped to a microphone and slowly, fervently said he believed that the Munich conference "is only the prelude to a larger settlement."

The Anglo-German declaration was signed in a four-hour earnest talk between the seemingly tireless Mr. Chamberlain and the Nazi chieftain at Hitler's Munich residence.

PEACEFUL SURRENDER

The talk followed by only a few hours upon the historic accord among them and Premier Daladier of France and Premier Mussolini of Italy, which settled Hitler's threat of armed invasion of Czechoslovakia with a plan for peaceful surrender of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland.

Mr. Chamberlain's homecoming was one of the greatest receptions ever given a Prime Minister. He received a personal message from the King as he stepped from his plane and was whisked away to Buckingham Palace to report personally.

While he was at the palace thousands of Londoners massed before the gates cheered until the King and Queen and the Prime Minister and Mr. Chamberlain appeared on the balcony.

WILL FACE ATTACK

On Monday Parliament will reassess the Munich agreement. Mr. Chamberlain will face an Opposition attack charging him with "giving way to dictators." But at No. 10 Downing Street there was a pile of messages of congratulation from all over the world.

Germany's will has prevailed over the wills of the British and French democracies to destroy the freedom of Czechoslovakia. Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, declared tonight.

Even before the public knew the itemized bill in pounds sterling which Britain had paid for preparedness—mobilization of her navy and widespread preparations for air raids—there was talk in political quarters of the Government going before the country soon in a general election on the issue: "Chamberlain kept us out of war."

Labor and Liberal Opposition largely held its fire until it could learn definitely how much had been granted to placate Hitler. To meet the opposition, Mr. Chamberlain had the new Anglo-German agreement against war and a chance to halt Europe's great arms race.

Expected consequences. Moreover, some persons thought that Mr. Chamberlain's first face-to-face talk with Mussolini might lead to an early settlement of the Spanish war intervention problem and bring into operation the dormant Anglo-Italian accord.

Despite the sudden lifting of the war clouds, authorities continued to distribute gas masks and fortify thousands of trenches in London parks as protection against air attacks. They advised, however, against new trenches.

The War Office announced that a "limited amount of leave" was being granted to some of the more than 50,000 territorial, anti-aircraft and coast defence units called out last Monday.

But whatever the Opposition might think or might say, Mr. Chamberlain was a "conquering hero of peace" to tens of thousands who greeted him today.

There was talk of a national subscription of perhaps a shilling a person to make up a fund to present to the Prime Minister, and there were suggestions that Mr. Chamberlain be proposed for the Nobel Peace Prize.

The Archbishop of Canterbury issued a call for "national thanksgiving and prayer" on Sunday, and General Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, ordered a similar thanksgiving service.

London, Sept. 30.—Neville Chamberlain returned tonight to London with Europe's reprieve in his pocket and found the capital wild with relief that war had been averted.

Men and women shouted and wept in the streets as the tired, elderly peacemaker flew back from Munich, reported to the King and then went home to rest before he faces Parliament on Monday.

As the crowd yelled itself hoarse, persons in it noted the changed appearance of the Prime Minister. He looked younger, his eyes gleamed. A broad smile spread across his face as he waved his hat like a schoolboy, and 200 schoolboys who had struggled into the airport waved Union Jacks back at him.

All the Cabinet except Lord Stanley, who is ill, were at Heston Airport as Commander Eric Robinson, a Canadian, set a sleek monoplane down at the end of the Prime Minister's third round trip between England and Germany.

Thousands milled around and roads were choked with traffic as other thousands sought to be among the first to greet the returning national hero.

As Mr. Chamberlain's angular figure appeared on the plane steps, the towering figure of the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax, was seen brandishing his hat as he led the Cabinet cheering that was a signal for the crowd to roar its welcome.

Mr. Chamberlain climbed from his plane, he produced from his pocket the Anglo-German anti-war agreement signed just today at Munich. He waved it at the crowd and shouted: "Here is a paper which bears his (Chancellor Hitler's) name upon it as well as mine."

Then he read it and the crowd yelled "Well done."

The Earl of Clarendon, Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, handed the Prime Minister a message from the King. Mr. Chamberlain then drove to Buckingham Palace, where Mr. Chamberlain had already arrived.

ON THE BALCONY. A tremendous crowd gathered in front of the palace began shouting "We want Neville!" After the Prime Minister's audience of twenty minutes with the King, he and Mrs. Chamberlain, with the King and Queen on either side of them, appeared on the balcony.

The crowd staged a demonstration scales such as has not been seen since the Armistice of 1918. They shouted. They flung their hats in the air. They wept and sang.

The words of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," "Land of Hope and Glory" and "God Save the King" were jumbled together as different sections of the mob started spontaneous singing.

Mr. Chamberlain looked amazed at the scene below. He shaded his eyes with his hand as a nearby air raid precautions searchlight unit flashed its big beam upon him.

VAST NUMBERS. He reached out and grasped Mr. Chamberlain's hand as the crowd sent out a new roar. Police had a hard time controlling the people who were good-natured, but were massed in such vast numbers they rolled through police lines by sheer weight.

A great crowd, meanwhile, assembled in Whitehall and Downing Street. Mounted constables slowly forced the way for Mr. Chamberlain's car as it brought him from the palace.

As his chauffeur poked his way through the throngs, people rushed up to the car, shouting, knocking on the windows, thumping the sides with their hands and waving.

Mr. Chamberlain, looking supremely happy, waved back and called out: "Thank you; thank you." When he finally got inside No. 10, the crowd remained shouting for him. The Prime Minister appeared at a second-story window and the noise subsided slowly as he indicated he was going to speak.

A hush finally settled in the little dead-end street as he affirmed his belief that his journey to Munich had resulted in "peace in our time," and recommended that the people go home and "sleep quietly in their beds."

GOLD RECOVERS LEADING PLACE

Base and Precious Metals Will Reverse Position in Province This Year

Gold mining will take the lead again this year in British Columbia, reclaiming from lead its position as the highest value producer in the industry, the Provincial Mines Department predicted yesterday. Last year's returns of $18,000,000 from gold may be increased as a result of new production.

In the base metals division, however, British Columbia may take a considerable drop, due to recession of base metal prices in comparison with last year. Lead, copper and zinc were instances.

Dr. J. P. Walker, Provincial mineralogist, predicted that the combined value for these three base metals alone may be $13,000,000 less than in 1937, although ore tonnage has been fairly steadily maintained.

Last year, it will be recalled, lead topped the British Columbia mining list with a gross value in excess of $21,000,000. This year it is expected to return in the neighborhood of $14,000,000, Dr. Walker said. Zinc and copper have been similarly affected.

Noting the trend, the department recently revised its annual production estimate downward, now predicting total values materially less than 1937.

NINE NEW LIGHTS ON YATES STREET

New Center-Suspended System to Illuminate Road Now Being Tried Out by City

Nine 400-candlepower electric lights suspended twenty-three feet above the pavement on Yates Street between Cook and Port Streets, were turned on for the first time last night by Walter B. McMillan, city electrician.

Spaced between 275 and 300 feet apart, the lights are designed to thoroughly illuminate the dark portion of the street.

At a meeting of the City Council street lighting committee yesterday afternoon, it was decided to recommend three or four of the center-suspended lights be installed on Quadra Street, from Pandora Avenue to North Park Street.

Alderman John A. Worthington, the committee chairman, intends to make a tour of inspection of the Dardanelles and twenty-five other spots in need of better lighting.

A decision was reached at the meeting to rearrange working hours at the city lighting plant. Alderman Worthington stated no employee was required to work more than forty-eight hours per week.

LIBERALS HEAR TWO SPEAKERS

Hon. N. W. Whittaker, K.C., M.P.P., and Alan Chambers Address Meeting

Hon. Norman W. Whittaker, K.C., M.P.P., and Alan Chambers were the speakers at the annual meeting of the Ward Four British Liberal Association, held in the Marigold Hall on Thursday evening.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, A. K. Dodson; vice-president, J. Warnock; secretary-treasurer, S. G. Wilson; honorary president, Mr. Whittaker; honorary vice-president, Alan Chambers.

Mr. Whittaker addressed the capacity gathering on the ideals and principles of Liberalism. He congratulated the association on its increase in membership during the past year, which he said spoke well for the interest being taken in governmental affairs.

ALAN CHAMBERS

Alan Chambers spoke on various subjects relating to the Oriental situation in British Columbia and the attitude of the Federal House concerning this problem. He also spoke on the matter of old age pensions and unemployment insurance, stating that there was a growing interest among the youth of the Province in Liberalism.

Mr. Dodson, the newly-elected president, gave a very interesting and amusing account of his trip to the Liberal Convention, recently held at Kelowna. He also outlined the British Columbia Health Insurance Bill.

In referring to the convention, Mr. Dodson said that although there was a difference of opinion on small matters, nevertheless there was a feeling of co-operation and complete accord in the Liberal policy.

A vote of thanks was tendered the retiring president, James Tharratt, for his work during the past year.

What Today Means

If October 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a.m. until 12:15 p.m.; from 2:15 to 4:15 p.m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a.m. from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. and from 10:15 p.m. until midnight.

If you have a desire to control some situation this day, be very careful of the means you employ. Fair play will be of utmost importance to get your principal. Fault-finding may be the principal cause for most of the day's unhappiness. Slipshod methods are apt to result in domestic and business troubles, so it will be good judgment to keep yourself pepped up and mentally alert. You ought to have an unlimited amount of potential energy to draw upon, if you use your mind as the motive power to generate it. Excessive emotionalism is likely to produce some of this day's most unpleasant dramatic incidents, so do not allow your feeling to be too greatly aroused. Keep under control any intense desire for evidence of hate, fear, love or joy. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are dreaming of marriage might find, in any planning, that two heads are better than one.

If a woman and October 1 is your birthday, you are likely to feel ambitious that requires only a slight amount of effort on your part to be realized. You ought to have plenty of back-bone, a high sense of justice and a fluency of speech that will help you reach the goal of your desire. You may be very susceptible to flattery, so be careful to discount it, and never permit it to turn your head. You may sooner or later have large sums of money at your disposal. Outdoor activities most likely have a strong appeal, and much lead to your meeting many worthwhile people. You are evidently very quick of comprehension have a deep religious faith, and a fondness for traveling. Musical, promotional and publicity work are among the activities in which you might be unusually successful. Your married life is likely to be interesting, filled with happiness and possibly several changes in environment.

The child born on October 1 frequently has a fascinating personality, with a gift for making friends. A ready tongue, probably will make this youngster an outstanding member of any social gathering. Encouragement and praise after it attains its majority, will stimulate its efforts sufficiently to justify a prediction of a brilliant and successful career.

If a man and October 1 is your natal day, love for adventure and the great outdoors may make you an avid reader of fiction, and somewhat of a dreamer. In spirit you probably never will grow old. Your home and family apparently will be your chief interest in life. As a seaman, soldier, explorer, politician, sales representative, author, actor or artist, exceptionally fine achievements perhaps will win for you many gratifying and substantial forms of recognition.

GOLF TEAMS PLAY TODAY

Canadian and British Representatives to Meet in International Match

OTTAWA, Sept. 30 (C.P.)—The British and Canadian women's golf teams practised over fairways of the Royal Ottawa Golf Club here today for the international team match tomorrow.

Players on both five-member teams appeared to be at top form for the first match between the two countries since 1934, when Britain defeated Canada 8-1-2 at Toronto.

Ada Mackenzie, Toronto sharp-shooter and sensation of the inter-provincial team match won by Ontario yesterday, said her team had "a good chance if they are playing their usual games."

The match will consist of two foursomes and five singles with win counting a point, a halved match a half-point and a lost match nothing.

MAKES TRIUMPHAL ENTRY INTO PARIS

ment of Czechoslovakia, which was the mainstay of France's Central European alliances, the Government was expected to win a vote of confidence.

The Premier made a triumphal entry into Paris driving through five miles of flower-strewn streets echoing to deafening cheers.

At the airport, crowds broke through police lines, crying "Peace! Peace!" as they rushed to greet him.

"PEACE IS PRESERVED"

Daladier said he was "certain today that, thanks to the desire to give mutual concessions and a spirit of collaboration which animated the action of the four great Western Powers, peace is preserved."

Conclusion of the Munich accord aroused hopes that France would soon patch up her strained relations with Italy. France has had no ambassador in Rome since late in 1936, when Count de Chambrun resigned because of her refusal to recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

The Republican Federation of Conservative Deputies adopted a motion declaring: "It is indispensable for consolidation of peace that normal diplomatic relations be re-established between France and Italy."

MAY BE AMBASSADOR

Reports circulated in the Chamber of Deputies that Francois Pietri, a Corsican and former Cabinet Minister, would be sent to Rome as ambassador, accredited to the King of Ethiopia, as Italy demands.

The press and public statements expressed gratitude to Daladier, Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain, and President Roosevelt, the latter for his peace message.

Relief was reflected on the Bourse.

PHONE EMPIRE 1177 Broughton Street at Broad where the franc closed at 36.85 to the United States dollar, up from 37.55 yesterday and 38.90 Wednesday.

On all sides the life of the capital, which had been stifled by fear of war, rushed back to normal. Crowds which had not been buying flocked to stores. Workers began replacing reflectors taken down to dim street lights and refilling ditches dug in parks for air raid protection.

CANCEL RESERVATIONS

The United States lines announced dozens of Americans who had taken passage on the liner Washington, sailing tonight from Le Havre, had cancelled their reservations.

Disunion within the Cabinet itself disappeared in the general rejoicing over the Munich accord.

Three Ministers who had tendered their resignations in protest against even milder treatment of Czechoslovakia than that agreed upon at Munich, aligned themselves with the rest of the Cabinet in congratulating Daladier.

They were Paul Reynaud, Minister of Justice, Georges Mandat, Minister of Colonies, and Auguste Champetier de Rube, Minister of Pensions. Their resignations had not been accepted.

GUEST PREACHER HERE FROM CHINA

Rev. V. Mills to Speak at Pentecostal Sunday and Show Moving Pictures Monday

Rev. V. Mills, recently returned missionary from China, will be guest speaker at the Pentecostal Tabernacle, North Park Street, Sunday morning at 11, and again at 7:30 in the evening.

Mr. Mills has been through several Japanese bombing raids and will show his own motion pictures of the devastation.

"PEACE IS PRESERVED"

Daladier said he was "certain today that, thanks to the desire to give mutual concessions and a spirit of collaboration which animated the action of the four great Western Powers, peace is preserved."

Conclusion of the Munich accord aroused hopes that France would soon patch up her strained relations with Italy. France has had no ambassador in Rome since late in 1936, when Count de Chambrun resigned because of her refusal to recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

The Republican Federation of Conservative Deputies adopted a motion declaring: "It is indispensable for consolidation of peace that normal diplomatic relations be re-established between France and Italy."

MAY BE AMBASSADOR

Reports circulated in the Chamber of Deputies that Francois Pietri, a Corsican and former Cabinet Minister, would be sent to Rome as ambassador, accredited to the King of Ethiopia, as Italy demands.

The press and public statements expressed gratitude to Daladier, Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain, and President Roosevelt, the latter for his peace message.

Relief was reflected on the Bourse.

FIRST OF ARMY CROSSES BORDER

The main body of troops, some 30,000 men assembled along the border of German Austria, was expected to follow up the vanguard shortly after 6 a.m.

The area around Agen bristled with preparations for the general advance into the first zone along the mountains on the southwest frontier of Czechoslovakia, north of Passau and Linz.

Alger and other towns clustered near the frontier, opposite the Krumau district that Germany was authorized to take over first, resembled large storehouses with quantities of canned goods, rice and flour assembled for transport into Sudetenland to supply needs of the populace as well as the army.

HECTIC ACTIVITY

Observers in the district reported hectic activity before nightfall on the Czechoslovak side of the border.

It was reported wooden bridges across the Moldau River were being destroyed by Czechoslovaks.

To assure transport into Sudetenland without a hitch, the army ordered farmers to place at their disposal all available horses.

Nearly 30,000 soldiers, especially motorized units, passed through Agen in the course of the afternoon.

So far-reaching and sudden was the preparation for the movement into Czechoslovakia that even Germany's great Thanksgiving Festival at Bueckeburg was called off.

Transportation facilities normally required to transport hundreds of thousands of persons to the festival were needed by the troops for occupation purposes.

COMMISSION MEETS

The international commission set up under the Munich accord to work out details for the evacuation of Sudetenland by persons not desiring to join Germany, met early on Friday in Munich, before the departure for home of Mr. Chamberlain, Premier Daladier of France, and Premier Mussolini of Italy, and conferred in Berlin late in the afternoon at the Foreign Office.

Count Ernest von Weizsaecker, German State Secretary, was named chairman. The other members of the commission are Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador, and Fernando Attolico, Italian Ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet, French Ambassador, and Dr. Vojtech Mastny, Czechoslovak Minister.

While troops begin taking over the territory, Berlin itself will be given a chance to show its feeling at 10:40 a.m. (1:40 a.m. P.M.T.) Saturday, when Hitler arrives from Bavaria.

The population has been called upon to beflag the city and turn out to welcome the Fuehrer in a mass demonstration.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people" (Matthew ix, 35).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Suffering, sinning, dying beliefs are unreal.
